Support for a modified U-Boot that is to be used with multiple BMCs must be approved before a package is released. Contact us for more information. The U-Boot port contains a patch which allows easy run of the entire U-Boot code as one compiled binary file. The U-Boot binary can be used to load the U-Boot code in the BMC. The patch also allows you to use code in U-Boot to load a kernel image and start the OS of the BMC (CPU, RAM,...) from U-Boot. U-Boot and the patch can be downloaded at Please use the web to get the source. You can not use the same U-Boot binary on a BMC and on a host system at the same time. You can use the U-Boot binary as a U-Boot menu to switch between kernels and/or hardware. The patch for the U-Boot port is currently only released under the BSD license. A license that fits U-Boot is being discussed. You can download the U-Boot patch from: Please use the web to get the source. U-Boot 2.06 is the first release to support a 2G U3 flash. The original U-Boot only supported 1G flash. Note that the size of the U-Boot image must be a multiple of the page size. A page size of 8k will require an image of 16MB. It is recommended to use an image with 32MB to get the best performance of the U3 flash. U-Boot 2.06 supports the new U3 flash versions of the storage controllers. The new format is still to be defined but is expected to use a similar layout like the Zaurus 3.0. The software format was defined by the NCF. The file U_BOOT_IMAGE_RUN_A10.ROM (available in u-boot) is similar to U_BOOT_IMAGE_RUN_X10 but is specific to the A10 board. You can use this file 82157476af
